Stallings to He Setained by the Philadelphias -Speculation on the McCoy-Creedon Hattle-Cherneki Talks of Jeffrice-The New Football Capinine of the "Hig Four."

The clubs of the National League have made an unusually large number of baseball deals this winter, and the end is not yet. The New York Club opened the ball by securing Grady and Hartman from St. Louis in exchange for Holmes, Donnelly, and $3,500 in cash. Not entisted with this deal. Von der Ahe proceeded to make another with the Philadelphia Club, which was one-sided and in the St. Louis magnate's favor. He unloaded Monte Cross, the shortstop; "Red" Donanue, the pitcher, and Douglass, the catcher, for such seasoned players as Jack Taylor, Clements, Dowd, and Lave Cross. "Vendy" followed this move by trading Catcher Morgan Murphy for Sugden of Pittsburg, and releasing Second Baseman Hallman to Brooklyn for Shoch. If Von der Ahe can now secure a competent manager to han-City, for these players are on his list:

Claments and Speden, catcherer Taylor, Carsey, Hart, Sudhoff, and Klasinger, to say nothing of severa minor leaguers, pitchers; Lally, first base; Shoch, second base; Lave Cross, short stop; Donnelly, third base; Dowd, Harley, and Turner, outfleiders.

Cincinnati has secured the best end of a deal with Pittsburg, as Ewing has secured Hawley and Elmer Smith in exchange for Rhines, Schriver, Gray, and McCarthy. The bigges deal of all involved the transfer of Doyle, Reits and Amole of Baltimore to the Washington Club for McJames, De Montreville, and Mc Gann. Hanlon, as in many past instances made a shrewd move that is regarded by base ball men as undoubtedly productive of bette results than Washington will enjoy from the and base runner, is not more than an ordinary played second base with the Bostons year be fore last, was acknowledged to be a corking batsman, but a weak fielder.

In Toronto last season be played first base and developed so rapidly that Arthur Irwin, bis manager, believes that he will lead allcomers in this department of the game in an other year. De Montreville is considered equal as a second baseman, barring aracefulness of style, and he is generally conded to be a far better hitter and base runner. McJames, though a youngster in experience, showed surprising pitching ability last summer, and with Robinson to catch him he bids fair to turn into another Corbett. Amole is only a fair left-handed pitcher with limited ex-perience. Hanlon certainly deserves the title of "Champion Deal Maker!"

Beyond the trade of Shoch for Hallman and the drafting of a number of minor league players, the Brooklyn Club has done very little yet toward changing the personnel of the team. The chief reason for this is the dangerous illness of President Byrne and the absence of Manager Barnie in California with the "Baltimore's disposal of Doyle to Washington knocks the proposed deal for Jack into splinters, but there is still some bope of securing Jack O'Connor from the Clevelands. Hallman, if he takes care of himself, will greatly strengthen the infield, but other up-to-date hustlers and batters are needed to make the team a winner. In this epidemic of basoball deals the Brooklyn Club, it would seem, might authorize Cnarley Ebbets to pull the wires in the enforced absence of Messrs. Byrne and Barnie Ebbets, while mixed up pretty well in politics, could find time, perhaps, to do a little corresponding with some of those magnates who are itching to make deals with anybody and everybody, notably, St. Louis and Philadelphia.

George Stallings, by the way, will be re-Beyond the trade of Shoch for Hallman and anybody and everybody, notably, St. Louis and Philadelphia.

George Stallings, by the way, will be retained as manager of the Philadelphias. This is the latest bit of inside information which has reached here from Quakertown. In spite of the patrons of the players and a majority of the opposition of the players and a majority of the patrons of the game, Reach and Rogers have concluded to try Stallings once more. This manager had so much experience last summer that he decided to prevail upon Rogers to sweep out all of the alleged trouble makers in the Philadelphia team, a plan in which he appears to have been successful, in view of the wholesale transfer of Quaker players in the past three months. Stallings's relations with the members of his team last season can be illustrated by an incident that occurred at the Polo Grounds when the Philadelphias were here on their first trip. Stallings stood in uniform on the coaching lines. Four members of the team, in street clothes sat in the back row of the grand stand. One of them with a paper megaphone suddenly made Stallings turn around with this remark:

"Bay, you long-legged lobeter, sit down on the bench and keep out of sight."

Stallings tried hard to locate his traducer, but was unsuccessful. Then another of the four took the megaphone and yelled:

"Fine yourself $10 because Taylor struck out. He was hypnotized by you.

Stallings walked slowly in toward the bench, looking for the howlers, but they kept quiet. The moment his back was turned they resumed their "ronst," and seemed to enjoy it hugely. Those who saw the incident needed no further explanation as to why the Philadelphias had such an unsuccessful team. Two of these four men mentioned above have been traded to St. Louis.

Sporting men from various parts of the country have arrived in town to see the Malor.

men mentioned above have been traded to St. Louis.

Sporting men from various parts of the country have arrived in town to see the McCoy. Creedon battle to be decided at the Long Island A. C. to-morrow hight. While the odds are slightly in favor of McCoy, to impartial observers the affair seems to be decidedly even up, each man having about an equal chance. Friends of McCoy realize that Creedon is the best man that the Kid has ever faced, but they base their confidence on McCoy's well-known quick-aeis, his wonderful ability to fight at long range and his physical trim. They believe that Creedon will be whipped in the same manner that McCoy fluished Tommy Hysan and Dick O'Brien in recent encounters, but they recognize the fact that Creedon is the most dangerous middle-weight in the business, outside of Fitzsimmons. The Australian's friends, and there are many of them, hope to see him stop McCcy in short order. In order to accomplish such a feat they say Dan must make a quick fight, that he will have to force the issue and rush his man to close quarters, where, in a series of heavy exchanges, he can beat McCoy down. Some of the more cool-hoaded partisans admit that if McCoy can keep away from Creedon's rushes and punish the Australian at long range, it will be the Kid's fight. Creeton, against Dick O'Brien, experienced a harder resistance than McCoy did in his battle with the Bostonian. But Dan put Charley Strong, the heavy-hitting Newark fighter, out in practically a punch when Strong lad made a wonderful showing against Bob Armstrong, the colored heavyweight, in a twenty-round affair. That fight alone showed that Creedon is a powerful-hitter at close range, but slow and rather awkward when it comes to the finest kind of science.

but slow and rather awkward when it comes to the finest kind of science.

Joe Choynski, the heavyweight pugilist, who recently fought a twenty-round draw with Jim Jeffries in San Francisco, was more surprised than anybody at the outcome of the battle. "I expected to finish Jeffries in half a dozen rounds," said Choynski hast nisht, "but I found him there until the limit was; reached. It would be impossible for me to say why I didn't beat him, except that perhaps I'm getting to be a 'has been' like many others." Tom O'Rourke, who saw the fight, said that it looked like a cinch for Choynski to win in four rounds. Jeffries, however, showed good staying powers. "San Francisco sports," said O'Rourke, "are strong advocates of tin hornism. They don't believe in having fights settled on their merits, but are looking out for the gambling end all the time. They put up a job to have Solly Smith beat Dixon, just as ther fixed the Fitz-siumons-Sharkey fight. In the battle between Sharkey and Goldard, the latter was counted out unfairly. He was getting up when the referee counted 'seven,' so that official said ten' as quickly as possible, and declared Goddard 'out.' It was a raw piece of business, By the way, I have a standing offer to match Walcott against Sharkey to light to a finish. Sharkey can make it unpleasant for smiant stoughing. But he would have to fight blow for blow with Walcott, who can lick him on the same principle that disposed of the lamented Mick Dunn at Concy Island a few years ago. A good punch in the wind would settle the sailor to all intents and purposes."

the sailor to all intents and purposes."

The election of Johnny Baird as Cautain of the Frinceton football eleven meets with universal approval among atmon and undergraduates. Baird, during the past season, played ouperb football, but was handicapped at the last moment by illness, so that his exhibition against vale was most unfortunate. Acknowledged to be the best punter and drop kicker in the country, Baird also devoloped into a first-class quarter back. In that place he showed so much skill in running his team that experts picked him out several weeks ago as the man to succeed Cachran. There was some talk of making Kelley, the great half back, captain, but he was recognized by his fellow players as not the man to take charge, for the excellent reason that he does not believe in training hard, and dislikes steady practice. The selection of Chamberdain to captain the Vale team was also well received at New Haven, and elsewhere, although many persons believed that He Saulies would be the man. The little quarter back would undoubtedly have been considered. sas also well received at New Haven, and elsewhere, although many persons believed that he Saulies would be the man. The listle quarter has k would undoubtedly have been elected instead of Chamberlain, had it not been for his backwardness in studies, due to so much participation in basebail and leothall. The fact that he will not be burdened with the extra duties of captain of the eleven will probably result in his being able to play second base on the nine and also quarter, back on the football team. Dibblee, Harvard's new captain, has the honor of being about the finest half back in the country. If he is permitted to have some say in the management of Cambridge football affairs, his team may be more successful than the one led by Cabot this fall. Outland, Pennsylvania's captain while a star tackle, is a rather unknown quantity when he is thought of as a team's leader. So is McLaughlin of Cornell.

team's leader. So is McLaughlin of Cornell.

The remarkable football season enjoyed by the University of Pennsylvania is the subject of much comment among college men. The gross receipts from games played by the 'varsity eleven reached $44,378,25. The expenses were quite heavy. The salary of Coach Woodraff, printing, advertising and police amounted to $7,960,94; hotel bills and railroad fares were $1,985,86; the uniforms and other paraphernalia cost $1,477,20; the training table cost $1,477,20; the training table cost $1,963,29, while the grand stand expenses reached $6,327,14. This made a total of $21,184,07 in expenses, which left the unusually large profit of $23,189,68. No other hig university in America had a better season financially.

A sporting man who is up to snuff said lest night: "The latest attempt on the part of Dan Stuart to arrange a Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight is simply a scheme. There will be no fight, but the parties interested hope to work up a lot of talk and renewed public interest. Fits will never fight Corbett again."

MR. RONNER'S HORSES SOLD Only 8500 for Starkirk.

The Kellogg sale of trotting stock of Madiso Square Garden yesterday demonstrated anew the fact that in the present condition of the horse market there is not much demand for anything except ready-made race horses and the very highest class of breeding stock. With low exceptions the horses offered were not dereloped, and low prices ruled. Robert Bonner was the principal consignor, selling forty head from his breeding establishment near Tarry-town. As Mr. Bonner never starts his horses in public races, not one of the animals offered had any public record, and having employed ne profemalonal trainer since John Murphy died, few of his young trotters were fitted to show their Starkirk and Ansel Chief were two notable exceptions, however, the former having trotted to sulky in 2:14 on Mr. Bonner's private track, while Ansel Chief has credit for a trial of 2:154 Starkirk is now nearly 13 years old. This fact kept his selling price down to $500, the figure at which he was struck off to Mike McDonald.

kept his selling price down to $500, the figure at which he was struck off to Mike McDonald, a Twenty-fourth street dealer. Ansel Chief is not yet 8 years old. He brought the highest price of the day, going for $1,200 to William Kelly, the well-known New York horseman, who owns Dan Cupid, 2:094. "Knapsack McCarthy will probably train and campaign the son of Ansel next year for his new owner. Margarite, a sister of Margaret S., 2:12½, that has herself trotted a trial in 2:18¾, looked like a bargain at $800, the price paid for her by Capt. J. F. Barnes.

William Rochefeller bought for $475 the chestnut mare, Music Belle, a daughter of Ansel and Mr. Bonner's noted mare Music, 2:21½, by Middletown. John H. Shults, James W. Daly, James McClennhau, and other well-known breeders were among the buyers. All told, forty head sold for Mr. Bonner brought $10,020, an average of $250 each.

W. K. Janvier's lot brought very low prices, only one animal among seventeen selling for as much as $200. Bessie Glipin, the dam of Favora, 2:12½, brought only $90. She is eighteen years old. Wilmar, 2:294, for whose full brother. Governor Sprague, 2:20½, J. T. Case paid $27,000, was knocked down for $65. He was foaled in 1875. Following is a complete list of the others:

The latest and most sensible of the one-design sachta that will be seen along the Found next summer will be a small cruising schooner. This class is the outcome of discussion among several yachting embusiasts, who desire and have advocated a wholesome type of boat that will not be obliged to run for a harbor whenever a little rough weather drives the racing machines to cover. Designs for the new craft will be submitted by several noted naval architects and work will be begun at once. It is expected by Frank Bowne Jones, he is one of the leading spirits in the movement, that in the neighbor-spirits in the movement, that in the neighborhood of a dozen of the new class will be ready for racing when the season opens. Copies of the following letter were mailed to a number of yachtsmen yesterday afternoon, and a meeting will be called at an early date for the purpose of selecting a suitable design:

Data Sin: I see to advise you that a movement has been instituted for the building of a one-design class of small erus sing schooners, vessels of good seagoing qualities, ampe accommodations, and incorrate coat. I would be glad to know whiter you desire to subscribe for the building of a vessel for this class, providing the plans and price are satisfactory. To insure completion of the vessels before the opening of the yachting season of 180s it is necessary that all arrangements be completed with as little delivates possible. I therefore request the favor of a response at your earliest convenience. Yours very truly.

HAMBURG'S PROBABLE OWNER. Berival of the Bumers That W. C. Whitney

The mysterious circumstances surrounding the purchase of the colt Hamburg frem John E. discussion in racing circles. Scarcely any two of the interested gossipers guess alike, and if the owner remains under cover another week the list of "probables" will begin to look like a horsemen's directory. Marcus Daly is the latest magnate of the turf credited with having bought the high-priced son of Hanover, but the puzzle seems to be no nearer solution than before. A clue may be found in the entries for the Coney Island Jockey Club stakes when they close on Jan. 10, and meanwhile there is a wide field open to the guessers.

Still there is marked unanimity of opinion among certain usually well-informed horsemen among certain usually well-intermed acreament in crediting William C. Whitney with being the purchasor. A statement to that effect was made last night with considerable emphasis through an authority who is seldom wide of the mark, and it was also stated that Mr. Whitney bought the colt for his son, Harry Payne Rumors to this effect have been in circulation since W. Lakeland went to Louisville last week and exchanged a formidable check for the noted son of Hanover. They were denied as often as they were made, however, but still there may be some significance in the persistent fashion in which the statement crops up.

M'COY COMES TO TOWN. Both Creedon and His Rival Resting Befor

Both Kid McCoy and Dan Creedon have stopped training, and are resting quietly at their respective quarters. Creedon is located at Coney Island, while McCoy is now in this city. McCoy will stay at the Vendome Hotel until to-morrow night. Creedon will not leave Coney Island until two hours before the battle.

Joe Choynski and Creedon boxed a few rounds yesterday just to keep the Australian limbered yesterday just to keep the Australian limbered up. Creedon seemed to be quick as lightning, and was looking well. McCoy trained hard all yesterday, and did not show any signs of fatisue. He took on Curry, West, Payne, and Falvey for separate bouts, and was not in the least distressed. His weight was said to be 155 pounds. McCoy thinks that it will be a fast fight. He says he will force things, and won't play a waiting game. Credon says practically the same thing. Dan weighed 163 pounds yesterday, and doesn't expect to take any more flesh on.

It is not definitely known who will act as referee. McCoy told a Sur reporter that he is willing to let the club select one. He is not averse to George Silor. Credon's seconds will be Tommy Tracey, Benny Murphy, Joe Choynski, and Ben Falk. In McCoy's corner will be "Doc" Payne of Cleveland, Con Reilly, Nate Fenton, and Homer McCoy. Choynski predicts that Creedon will win inside of twenty roun is. Mayor Gleason said yesterday that there was no chance of the fight being interfered with unless the boxers violated the law. He issued a license to the club, and declared that he would be present to see that the law was carried out to the letter.

NEWS OF THE WHEELMEN.

THE PROPOSAL TO ESTABLISH A JUNIOR LEAGUE FINDS FAVOR.

Changed Conditions May Force Siders to Be

come Expert Amateur Mechanics-Serion Rick Against a Bating of the Bacing Board -Chairman Mott's Weekly Bulletin-Notes. On every side the idea of forming a junior branch of the League of American Wheelmen seems to be growing in favor. "A League nursery" is the way one individual alludes to the proposed organization of boys and girls be-tween the ages of 10 and 18. As the scheme is further discussed in League circles new features of it which will be beneficial are brought to light. It would be literally a nursery for the League proper—a cadet corps which would be continually turning in trained recruits to the main division. More than this, it would un questionably result in an immediate and sub stantial increase of the L. A. W. membership. The originators of the plan have been commendably wise in drafting the amendments providing for the Cadet Corps, particularly in the mat ter of making each corps distinctly a State division affair, and leaving it optional with the various divisions whether or not to organize one

" Every rider his own repairman" promises to be an excellent motto for adoption next year. The abandonment by manufacturers of expensive branch stores in which customers have een accustomed to have repairs made will be sorely felt by the helpless class of cyclists, who know no more about the vehicle on which they ride than they do of the engine that pulls their parlor car. Attentions of this kind cannot be expected of the big department stores, into the hands of which the trade is now passing. The small retailers are also concluding to draw close small retailers are also concluding to draw close lines for the reason that competition has lowered prices so that the markins of profit are too small to justify doing much gratuitous work. One large dealer has announced that he will not pump free the tires of even the wheels sold by himself. "The thing has been run into the ground," he says.

That there is a growing tendency on the part of riders to understand the details of bicycles and do their own work on them seems to be indicated by the increasing number of separate spokes, rims, and tires being sold to riders. Two or three kinds of tire and rim cement in handy form for home use have recently appeared, and or three kinds of tire and rim cement in anny form for home use have recently appeared, and several new "nipple grips" for tightening spokes are being marketed. Repair kits and tools of various kinds are also more in evidence in the price lists of jobbers, and those who deal in these articles say that they are selling well and attribute it to the fact that more riders are attending to the small jobs on their wheels

A ruling made by the Racing Board of the L. A. W., in suspending Thomas C. Benner of Philadelphia from all League tracks, last week, seems likely to provoke trouble for the League. Benner, who is a well-known whechman in Philadelphia, held a race meet at that city last fall, and among the events was a triplet race. The starters included Starbuck, McCurdy, and Church, the well-known professionals. This team, which was picked to win, was distanced shortly after the start and retired without finishing. Only three teams took part in the race, although three purses were offered. The meet officials advised Benner not to award the third prize to Starbuck's team, and as a result he prize to Starbuck's team, and as a result he finds that Chairman Mott of the L. A. W. has ruled him off all the League tracks for refusal to deliver prizes. Benner threatens to sue the L. A. W. The Racing Board of the L. A. Unless show covers the links too thickly, ther will probably be a number of golfing competi tions on Christmas Day. The Richmond Hill Golf Club is the first to make an announcement. and it offers a programme of exceptional inter est. The prize will be the Van Rensselser Cup the gift of Cortlandt Van Rensselser. The qualifying rounds will be played on Dec. 18 and 20 and will be at eighteen holes, handicap medal play. There will be a prize for the best net score and the first sixteen will be admitted to score and the first sixteen will be admitted to the match play for the cup. The round may be played on either day, but the members must deciare their intention before starting. On Christmay Day those who qualify will play the first and second rounds for the cup at eighteen holes. There will also be an all-day bogic handleap at eighteen holes, and the cards in the cup competition will count in this, if so declared in advance. The semi-finals and finals for the cup will be played on Monday, Dec. 27.

The final match to decide the tle for the championship of Harvard College, between G-C. Clark, 1901, and W. B. Cutting, Jr., 1900, has been won by Clark by S up and 1 to play.

The Greens Committee of the Wee Burn Golf Club has decided to lengthen the links at Noroton, Conn., from 2,077 to 2,714 yards. George Strath has planned the alterations, which are made possible by the purchase of an additional nine acres bordering on the present property. The changes are already under way, and include the lengthening of the first hole from 197 to 235 yards by setting back the green. The tee is put back on the second hole, altering the playing distance from 221 to 230 yards. In the same way the third hole is to be lengthened ten yards, which will make it 248 yards. The fourth, the Grove hole, will be greatly changed in its characteristics, and the length will be changed from 190 to 322 yards. The short fifth hole, formerly 183, will horeafter be 173 yards.

The new sixth hole will be in an entirely different direction from the present line of play for the new fourth tee is to be in place of the present sixth green. The new line is uphill and over the new fourth tee is to be in place of the present sixth green. The new playing length will be 467 yards, 169 yards longer than the old hole. The new seventh hole will also be a great change. The distance will be changed from 259 to 478 yards, the tee being near the new sixth green and the play the reverse way. The general line of play for the eighth and ninth holes will remain the same, but the distance of the lirst will be changed from 311 to 327 yards.
